“Liberty!”
The American Revolution in Connecticut

When the first blood of the American Revolution was shed at Lexington on April of 1775, Connecticut moved unhesitatingly in support of the Patriots. Some 3,600 militiamen marched to join the Patriot force collecting in Cambridge. Connecticut’s immediate response was characteristic of its support of the American cause throughout the Revolutionary War.

Though the more dramatic battles took place elsewhere, the importance of Connecticut to the war effort cannot be underestimated. Besides contributing troops, the colony was largely responsible for keeping Washington’s army clothed and fed, as well as being a major manufacturer of arms and supplier of gunpowder. An argument could be made that without...
President’s Corner

I wonder what George Washington would have done if he were in my situation. George could rally his retreating troops in the face of threatening danger. He could convince men to stay on past their discharge date in the dead of winter while suffering from harsh weather, lack of food, clothing, and supplies - at a time when they were paid with practically worthless paper currency, if they were paid at all! George could get those around him to give their all for the cause even when it looked hopeless. Unfortunately, Gen. Washington is no longer with us, and I will never be anywhere near the leader that he was. Nevertheless, I shall herein attempt to inspire more of our members to help us in whatever way that they can so that we can more rapidly achieve the goals we have set for this organization.

We, the members of the Connecticut Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, are the custodians of the memory of not only George Washington but also all of the patriots of his day who sacrificed everything to give us the freedom that we enjoy today. It is the responsibility of each and every one of us to keep that memory alive and to pass it on - not only to our children, but to as many people as we can. To that end, let us all take a minute to think how we can contribute a little extra to the SAR. Can you offer some time, expertise, skills, or funds? Will you help one of our committees? Would you like to be an officer? How can you help to promote the objectives of the SAR?

Steady growth of this Society is also necessary to ensure that we continue to meet our objectives. Every member of SAR should be a recruiter. There are many ways to do this. Proudly display your membership certificate, license-plate frame, automobile decal, coffee mug, etc. Wear SAR clothing, distribute SAR literature to libraries and historical societies, and publicize SAR activities, events, & meetings. Talk about SAR to your friends, relatives, and people that you meet. Creating an interest is the first step. All of us can and should be doing this. We are very fortunate that we have several members who will do what is needed to help prospective members with their applications. Just think about this for a moment if each one of us were to recruit just one new member this year CTSSAR would have nearly 1200 members!

I appreciate the hard work we have done so far, and the support that your dues payments provide. Now, let’s give our all for the cause. I’d like to see more of our members helping us to realize our maximum potential. Let’s keep the memory of our patriot ancestors alive and show the general public what CTSSAR is all about! Please contact me if you want to help in any way.

More majoram. (After the manner of our ancestors)

An Apology

In the last issue of the newsletter I made a statement that could have been taken the wrong way.

I hereby formally apologize to Richard Swartwout for my comment.

It was made in jest only. Especially, since most of us who are involved know how much Richard has done to bring the history of our patriots alive for the public.

Richard has been working heavily with the Connecticut Colony Military Association (CCMA) which is made up of Members of our society and many others.

http://www.revwar.com/ccma/

Richard and many others will be reenacting the 225th British Invasion of New Haven at Black Rock Fort on June 26th. There will be battles and many ceremonies. If you and your family have never been to one of these events, the time is now. You can get more details from him at capt6th.coli@att.net.

Colonial House on PBS

Starting in mid May, PBS will air their latest series. This one will recreate life in 1628, which will give us a much greater idea of how our patriot ancestors lived as well.

I have seen some of the other time periods that they have covered and they have been very informative. Find out more at:

Connecticut, Washington might not have won the war.

“Liberty” is a two-hour documentary for television that brings to life the events that led up to the war and Connecticut’s involvement in it. Through the use of archival materials, reenactments by professional actors and on-camera comments from American history scholars, we will hear the actual words of the principal players in the conflict from Jonathan Trumbull, Nathan Hale and Jared Ingersoll to Benedict Arnold and George Washington, as well as both colonial and British troops in the field.

Reenactments of the battle at Lexington, the attack on Fort Griswold and the Danbury Raid will add action and drama to this historical documentary.

“We fight not to enslave, but to set a country free, and to make room upon the earth for honest men to live in.”

--Thomas Paine
